

Dr. Pankaj Prakash Kharade

Dear Readers,

It gives me immense delight to write the editorial for University Journal of Dental Sciences being published under the aegis of Aligarh Muslim University, a Central University. University Journal of Dental Sciences has been publishing the evidence based research articles for a long time which has created a sense of excellence towards research work amongst the young academicians and researchers. This journal has reached to the broader dental community by disseminating recent knowledge at a regular interval. Many readers are getting benefited due to easy online accessibility of this journal. In this manner it has been stimulating further research and contributing to improved oral health outcome of the associated community. Authors of this journal from various regions of India deserve the appreciation for their contribution to the field of Dental Sciences for whom University Journal of Dental Sciences has been playing the role of facilitator in spreading the knowledge. This journal has become a trusted source of wisdom and guidance for postgraduate and undergraduate students by virtue of the rare clinical cases published over the period of time. Students are getting exposed to cutting-edge clinical research, opportunities to learn about recent advances in clinical treatments as well as related guidelines, and numerous avenues for professional development with the help of this journal.

The exuberant editorial and reviewer team of the University Journal of Dental Sciences has been doing a commendable job for past so many years. I am confident that the entire team will carry on same efforts and University Journal of Dental Sciences will achieve unprecedented success. I congratulate the entire team of University Journal of Dental Sciences for allowing healthcare professionals to stay abreast of advancements in the field of Dental Science.

Best wishes to the University Journal of Dental Sciences.
